

País:
Ecuador, Perú

Compartir:

Implementing consortium:

Practical ACTION · Naturaleza y Cultura Internacional · AIDESEP · WWF · Terra Nuova · cospe TOGETHER FOR CHANGE

The UK Biodiverse Landscapes Fund Project (BLF Andes Amazon) is being implemented in Ecuador (provinces of Morona Santiago, Zamora Chinchipe and part of the provinces of Azuay and Loja) and Peru (provinces of Jaén, San Ignacio, Bagua, Condorcanqui and Datem del Marañón). This project is part of the national development policies and plans of Peru and Ecuador and the Binational Development Plan, contributing directly to national biodiversity and climate change strategies and goals, as well as to the life plans of indigenous peoples and nationalities in both countries.

The BLF Andes Amazon will support the efforts of the State, indigenous peoples and nationalities, small producers and civil society in synergy with other cooperation initiatives to contribute to the conservation of biodiversity, connectivity and territories of life (more than 3 million hectares); the strengthening of nine indigenous organisations; and the improvement of the economic income of more than 7,500 families living in the landscape, while also promoting greater action to mitigate and adapt to climate change.

Main contributions

View all

Preserving the land and creating opportunities: economic empowerment of indigenous women in the Amazon

10.09.2026

Strengthening the Valles del Inca field school to supply schools in Tabaconas

19.08.2026

Agri-food safety workshop at the Centrocafe cooperative as part of the BLF Andes Amazónico project

28.06.2026

Promoting the Empowerment of Awajún Indigenous Women: Workshop Builds Capacity in Design and Fashion

20.06.2026

Contribution area

The BLF Andes Amazon project is being developed between Peru and Ecuador, in a cross-border landscape of great biodiversityandcultural richness.

- This territory has an enormous variety of ecosystems, such as montane forests, páramos, Amazon lowland forests, wetlands and tropical dry forests, which are strategic assets in the face of the challenges of global climate change.
- This landscape still contains more than 8 million hectares of primary forests and has been the centre of origin and domestication of cocoa for more than 5,000 years, but it faces various challenges to its conservation and sustainable development.
- This territory of more than 11 million hectares is a source of life and livelihood for almost one million people, including ancient indigenous peoples and nationalities of the Amazon (Achuar, Awajún, Shapra, Kandozi, Kichwa, Shuar, Wampis). On the Peruvian side, 20% of the country's Amazonian indigenous population (105,000 people) lives, and on the Ecuadorian side, 35% (135,000 people).

Contribution and organization

Strategic line 1

Strengthening biodiversity conservation, connectivity and territoriesoflife. It is implemented by Nature and Culture International in both countries.

Strategic line 2

Strengthening indigenous organisations[1] in the landscape to protect their rights and govern their territories. Implemented by AIDESEP and WWF in both countries.

Strategic line 3

Strengthening the competitiveness and sustainability of coffee, cocoa, banana and biobusiness value chains in the landscape. It is implemented by Terra Nuova (Peru) and COSPE (Ecuador) and includes forest restoration in areas affected by the expansion of agricultural activities that form the basis of the local economy.

Publications

View all

Addressing the agenda of indigenous peoples through public management and investment in the Northern Amazon region of Peru

See details

Weaving the Future: progress and challenges for indigenous amazonian women in one of the world's most biodiverse territories, straddling Peru and Ecuador

See details

The Indigenous Pathway to Climate Action: Innovating, Reorienting and Building Equity

See details

Factsheet on the BLF Amazonian Andes project

See details

Learn more about the project

The essence of the BLF Andes Amazon

Binational banana cluster in Ecuador and Peru | BLF Andes Amazon

We want to hear from you

Project support and complaints

If you are a beneficiary, partner or member of any organisation within the scope of the BLF Andes Amazon project, you may submit your grievances and complaints regarding the development of project activities here.

Contact

comunicaciones-BLF@practicalaction.org

LOS GRANDES CAMBIOS
comienzan pequeños

Registered with FUNDRAISING REGULATOR
Reg Charity No 247257

Practical Action

Perú | Bolivia

Oficina Regional de América Latina
Av. Camino Real 456. Oficina 1304, Torre Real, San Isidro, Lima, Perú
info@practicalaction.org

Tel. +51(1) 4412950

Visitar web global